Beginners' Japanese Language Training Course for Foreign Employees

1. Background

The Association for Overseas Technical Cooperation and Sustainable Partnerships (AOTS) is a human resource development organization that promotes technological cooperation through training programs, expert dispatch programs, and other approaches, mainly for industrial human resources in developing countries. Through these projects, AOTS contributes to the mutual economic development of Japan and other countries around the world, and also works to advance friendly relationships.

AOTS was established in August 1959 as the first private organization for technical cooperation in Japan after being approved by the Japanese government's Ministry of International Trade and Industry (currently, the Ministry of Economy, Trade and Industry). The organization had provided training programs in Japan for over 190,000 participants from 170 countries in total by the fiscal year 2017, and provided programs overseas for over 201,000 participants in total.

Taking advantage of its past experience in human resource development and extensive networks inside and outside Japan, AOTS rolls out new projects for international cooperation. These new projects are not funded or commissioned by the national government—rather, they are independently organized and run by AOTS.

This Beginners' Japanese Language Training Course for Foreign Employees is mainly intended for foreign employees (including prospective employees) who are going to join or be transferred to a company in Japan. The training course offers Japanese classes for fostering the basic Japanese proficiency needed for living and working in Japan, lectures for understanding Japanese culture and corporate culture, project work for acquiring teamwork skills and other basic skills as a member of the working world, and more, all in a combined program.

It aims at preparing participants for working in Japanese society and companies, and helping them earn an understanding of background knowledge and acquire basic abilities to communicate with people and to take action so that they can play an active role in the enterprises they work for.

4. Language Used

- (1) Japanese classes are conducted in Japanese.
- (2) AOTS provides interpreters and translated materials for lectures about Japanese culture and business culture.
 - * Please note that we may require participants to attend lectures in English if not enough participants request language assistance in other languages.

6. Number of Participants

About 10 participants

* Minimum number of participants: 5

* Please note that we may change the site of the training program or cancel the program if the number of participants is fewer than the above.

7. Intended Participants

Individuals who fall under any of the following, or have similar reasons to learn Japanese:

- (1) Foreign nationals who are going to join a Japanese company based in and/or outside Japan through global recruitment and/or local recruitment schemes, and are required to learn Japanese;
- (2) Foreign employees (including prospective employees) who are going to be transferred to a Japanese company based in Japan, and are required to learn Japanese;
- (3) Foreign students who completed university and/or graduate school in Japan through a program conducted in English, and are required to learn Japanese in preparation for joining a Japanese company;
- (4) Foreign employees who already work for a Japanese company or organization based in and/or outside Japan, and are required to learn Japanese;
- (5) Foreign nationals who are visiting Japan as a Technical Intern, and are required to learn Japanese; and
- (6) Foreign nationals who are required to learn Japanese for other reasons.

Japanese learning levels

- (1) In principle, the program is intended for participants who know a few greetings in Japanese.
It aims to help them acquire the minimum Japanese language proficiency needed for living and working in Japan.
(Target level: Japanese Language Proficiency Test N5 and N4, or equivalent)
- (2) If there are participants with higher levels of Japanese proficiency (e.g. who already have a Japanese proficiency of N4 or equivalent and aim to increase their proficiency to N3 or equivalent), and their levels of proficiency are not far apart, we will consider setting up a class for a relevant level.

Note:

- (1) Participants are required to attend all of the curriculum offered in the training course.
- (2) Participants cannot make their own program or ask AOTS to add more programs.

8. Course Details and Schedule

* Total course hours: 190 hours

* Please see the separate sample schedule for more information.

(1) Fostering Japanese language proficiency (Japanese classes)

Foster participants' basic command of the language needed for living and working in Japan

Key point 1: Priority on training speaking and listening skills

Once you start training or working in a company, oral communication is essential.

AOTS's program will help you foster oral communication skills by putting priority on ensuring that you will have time to converse with your instructors and fellow participants, so that you will be able to understand everyday instructions, answer simple questions, and say what you are thinking.

Key point 2: Foster abilities for conquering tasks that occur in actual workplaces

You will simulate specific tasks that are mostly likely to occur in real life—for example, adjusting a delivery date because you cannot keep the deadline, reporting the progress and outcomes of your work, sending a thank-you e-mail to business partners, or chatting with your Japanese colleagues for a few minutes—and learn appropriate Japanese phrases for each scene.

Key point 3: Learn basic technical words needed for industrial human resources

You will learn terms and words that will be needed in any industry or occupation when you train or work in a Japanese company, using AOTS's original teaching materials.

Key point 4: Practice conversation with Japanese neighbors

During the course, you will have time to practice your conversation skills with Japanese people who live near the training center.

Opportunities to talk with ordinary Japanese people will help you get used to speaking and listening in Japanese naturally. They will also help you practice using polite expressions with someone you meet for the first time.

Note:

Participants are required to learn how to write and read hiragana and katakana before joining the program.

Participants on the course will have access to use the AOTS Japanese e-learning Hiragana Katakana course free of charge. (See below for more information.)

Textbooks to be used:

Minna no Nihongo Shokyu I, Minna no Nihongo Shokyu II, etc.

Textbooks will be changed as necessary.
