Note 1: When purchasing or fabricating (1) devices and equipment, (2) utensils and supplies, (3) tools, or (4) software, the unit purchase price may be recorded as eligible expenses of the program up to the amount shown in the table above.

Note 2: Include in the purchase price the amount paid for the entire set including bundled accessories, parts, software, etc. (e.g., items that are not functional on their own). However, there is no need to include consumables.

Note 3: Treat CAD software, analytical software, and other software that could function on its own on a general-purpose computer separately as individual units.

Note 4: Purchase prices do not include amounts of consumption tax, VAT, or other taxes assessed on individual items when purchasing or fabricating the devices and equipment.

Note 5: If separate shipping charges or tariffs, customs clearance fees, or other one-time costs are incurred on procurement from a country other than the one where the course is held, they do not need to be included in the purchase unit price.
